"To Revive a Person Is No Slight Thing" by Diane Williams (Electric Literature's Recommended Reading) Diane Williams

In her introduction, Deb Olin Unferth explains why she has felt so connected to Diane Williams' work over the years. "I think I loved the work so passionately because as I read I could hear a murmur that I recognized faintly, one that I'd heard before but never clearly. A murmur that said: Don't listen to them. Listen to me. Life and art are peculiar. Life and art respect and embrace the error, the asymmetrical. It is lonely to be an error, but it is yours. It is mine!"

"To Revive a Person Is No Slight Thing," Unferth writes, is a "small quiet story is of a woman putting together an average dinner and eating with her husband. But Williams is expert at turning the calm and ordinary into the classical: the private surprise that one has found oneself in a fresh life, sitting with a "new spouse" (a phrase that implies both newness and familiarity)."

About the Author: Diane Williams is the author of eight books, including a collection of her selected stories. She is also the founder and editor of the literary annual NOON, the archive of which, as well as Williams's personal literary archive, was acquired in 2014 by the Lilly Library at Indiana University. She lives in New York City.

About the Guest Editor: Deb Olin Unferth is the author of three books. Her fourth is forthcoming from Graywolf Press.

About the Publisher: Electric Literature is an independent publisher amplifying the power of storytelling through digital innovation. Electric Literature's weekly fiction magazine, Recommended Reading, invites established authors, indie presses, and literary magazines to recommended great fiction. Once a month we feature our own recommendation of original, previously unpublished fiction.
