La comunidad académica de la Universidad de La Salle, inspirada por la misión institucional, se compromete con una educación integral y la generación de conocimiento que aporte a la transformación social y productiva del país. También, a la participación activa en la construcción de una sociedad justa y en paz mediante la formación de profesionales que por su conocimiento, sus valores, su capacidad de trabajo colegiado, su sensibilidad social y su sentido de pertenencia al país inmerso en un mundo globalizado, contribuyan a la búsqueda de la equidad, la defensa de la vida, la construcción de la nacionalidad y el compromiso con el desarrollo humano integral y sustentable (Universidad de La Salle, 2007).

En tal sentido, la Facultad de Ciencias del Hábitat de la Universidad de La Salle centra su producción de conocimiento y sus acciones de docencia y extensión en la formación de profesionales en las áreas de arquitectura, urbanismo y las ciencias del hábitat, para el mejoramiento de las condiciones de vida del hombre, en especial de las poblaciones menos favorecidas de Colombia, mediante el diseño y la construcción de formas habitables apropiadas e innovadoras para, de esta manera, contribuir a la generación de un mundo más justo y más humano. Respondiendo a la misión institucional y de la Facultad, el conocimiento científico, técnico y humano, base para la proposición de alternativas para el mejoramiento del hábitat, se fundamenta en el reconocimiento de la complejidad de los grupos humanos, respetando sus dimensiones culturales, espirituales y sociales, en especial, valorando sus costumbres, creencias y prácticas, aspectos que dan soporte a las comunidades. Solo a partir de la valoración de la realidad e identidad de una comunidad específica, se proponen alternativas para el mejoramiento de la calidad de su hábitat, con una visión prospectiva, contemplando las tendencias del mundo globalizado.
